...Notes...

What is Loon Watch?

Loon watch, a program of the Sigurd Olson Environmental Institute at Northland College, works to protect common loons and their aquatic habitats in Wisconsin and the western Great Lakes region through education, research and monitoring.

Loons need your help

Common loons once nested throughout the Upper Midwest, but today, loon music is absent from much of their former range. Human activities are largely responsible for the disappearance of loons from many lakes. Development of shorelines and islands for summer homes, campgrounds, and marinas destroy traditional nesting areas and diminish other suitable nesting habitat. Disturbances of loons, especially during sensitive nesting and chick rearing periods can reduce reproductive efforts. Toxins in our water such as mercury from coal-burning power plants and lead from fishing tackle can cause altered behavior, reduced reproduction, and increased mortality in loons.

In today's increasingly crowded world, loons and people must coexist on the same lakes. You can support LoonWatch by make a tax deductible donation or by becoming a volunteer. You can be an active voice for the loon and help ensure that their haunting calls continue to be heard on our lakes.

COMMON LOON QUESTIONS

What do loons look like?

Loons are powerful, streamlined birds with red eyes, greenish black head, long tapered beak and black and white checkerboard plumage. The common loon (Gavia immer) stands approximately 25 inches tall, weighs between 8 and 11 pounds and has a wingspread of 5 feet.

Are loons protected by law?

Yes, The Migratory Bird Treaty Act protects loons and all migratory non-game birds from harassment. In Wisconsin please report intentional loon harassment to the DNR at 1-800-TIP-WDNR.

How many loons live in the Midwest?

Wisconsin lakes are the summer homes to approximately 3,100 adult loons. Minnesota has about 12,050 loons, and Michigan (where they are listed as Threatened) has more than 650.

Do loons mate for life?

Banding records show that loons often return to the same lake each year. However, mates probably don't winter or migrate together and return to the same lake independently. Loons do occasionally switch mates and seem to be more attached to their lake than to each other.

Where do loons nest?

Loons build their nests at the water's edge because they have difficulty walking on land. Loons prefer to nest on islands and in backwaters protected from wave action. Often, they use the same nest site each year.

How many eggs do loons lay?

Most loon nests have two eggs, although some may have one or, rarely, three eggs. Loons may lay a second clutch of eggs if the first nest is destroyed. Loon eggs are 3 inches long with an olive green shell with dark spots.

LOON WATCHThings to remember to Help Protect Loons*

View loons from a respectful distance of a least 200 feet away. Get powerful lens for your camera, use binoculars or a spotting scope for viewing, and never explore a loon nest site. Close encounters can be deadly for swimming and loons.

Use non-lead fishing tackle singers and jigs. Ingesting only one lead singer will kill a loon from lead poisoning

Avoid exploring or camping on islands before July 15th of each year. Loons prefer islands for nesting. Disturbances can cause a loon to abandon its nest.

Protect native vegetation on all shores. Loons nest on natural shorelines and use the natural materials to build their nests.

Conserve electricity. Mercury emissions contaminate lakes and loon food.

Dispose of household garbage at a collection site. Garbage draws raccoons, foxes, gulls, and eagles, which prey on loon eggs. Trash can also ensnare wildlife, including loons.

Be an ethical angler. Never fish or cast near loon nests or swimming loons, properly dispose of extra bait and trash, and pick up monofilament line.

Keep dogs and cats away from loons and nests. Pets disturb nesting loons and can destroy loon eggs.

Use only phosphorus-free fertilizers on shore lands, and only if needed. Fertilizer that runs off into lakes increases aquatic plant growth, making it difficult for loons to swim and find food.

Report any unusual loon activity or harassment of loons to your lake's Loon Ranger. Find out who is the official Loon Ranger on your lake and report your observations to him or her.

Monitor water quality or invasive species. Check with you lake association for ways that you can help.

Be a responsible boater. Never chase loons or run motorboats or personal watercraft over areas where loons have been seen. Loons and loon chicks have died from being hit by boats and propellers.

Practice and reach wildlife stewardship...always!
